1917. Lieutenant Katz and his soldiers are no cowards. Hardened warriors, they are used to charging out of their trench into a hail of bullets. But today, they've had enough. The criminal incompetence of their officers threatens once again to lead them into disaster. So they decide to desert. But not to run away, nor to hide. Instead, they will go together to Paris, to present a petition to parliament in the name of their brothers-in-arms. It's the beginning of an extraordinary, and desperate, journey...
