Just as he is about to take part in the New York Marathon, the protagonist of this sprawling graphic novel receives a text from his girlfriend, who tells him it's over between them. In desperation, he buys an old motorcycle and sets off on a different marathon, crossing the country to save his relationship. Along the way, we discover his thoughts, his joys, his pain, and the legendary places of America. This is a rich and subtle tale of that which is most precious: life itself.
