Lova disappears in the forests of the Ardennes. Eight years later she is found, living among the wolves. Naked, covered with wounds, wild. Then the delicate work of the re-education of the wolf-child begins. Thanks to her mother Catherine, the progress is spectacular: rediscovered words, snatches of memories, smiles torn from the nothingness. But Lova must fight with all her strength against the call of her brethren the wolves: a terrible struggle, moving, and with an uncertain ending.
