Imagine a world where all jobs are carried out by robots. All? Not quite. Since robots are programmed not to hurt people, human beings still have two options: join the police or the army. These military cops are filmed in action, so that millions of TV viewers with nothing better to do can follow their investigations.

Norman K. Barron leads a small team of investigators on a series of the most spectacular cases. He is 40 years old, physically attractive, has a gorgeous wife, and is stinking rich. If only he wasn't constantly surrounded by cameras...
