On the island of Chausey, off the coast of Normandy, an unexpected storm overturns the fate of Paul, an old man about to end his life, and Kristen, a young girl whose ship crashes against the rocks of the island. The story of this encounter appears to be that of a mutual rescue: a response to a flare launched over the waves. Because Kristen is not here by chance. Paul is a photojournalist known for his series "Terra", and Kristen works for the publisher who is waiting for the mock-up of his new book. A different, more intimate book: the diary of a life of love affairs. The portraits of women on his walls bear witness to the Don Juan's conquests and overlap the memories of his childhood home.

The breathtaking realism and play of light add a lively cinematographic texture to the images that deepens each wrinkle on the character's face and draws us into the waves of this sentimental journey.

Faced with this detached man, who is reluctant to show off his trophies, Kristen has not yet said her last word. She is the voice of modern women in the lair of a loner, a man from another generation bound to disappear.

MON HÔTEL SE DRESSAIT SUR PALM JUMEIRAH, CETTE ÎLE ARTIFICIELLE EN FORME DE PALMIER QUI ABRITE DE LUXUEUX RESORTS ET D'OPULENTES VILLAS...

JE M'ÉTAIS LEVÉ À L'AUBE ET LONGEAIS LA PLAGE, TOTALEMENT DÉSERTÉ À CETTE HEURE...

COMME VOUS LE SAVEZ, JE PHOTOGRAPHIE LE PLUS SOUVENT AU LEVER DU JOUR...

J'AIME PARTICULIÈREMENT LA LUMIÈRE DE L'AUBE, LÉGÈRE, TRANSLUCIDE, TELLEMENT ÉPHÉMÈRE...

C'EST À CE MOMENT-LÀ QU'ELLE EST APPARUE...

ELLE SORTAIT D'UNE DE CES FASTUEUSES VILLAS QUI ABONDENT SUR CETTE PLAGE... IL N'Y AVAIT ABSOLUMENT PERSONNE D'AUTRE EN VUE...
