'Gasping for Sulphur' is a zany and iconoclastic portrait of our troubled times. In an album of five chapters, Jul goes to town on a mish-mash of comic genres, parodies, fables and life lessons! Like a kid in a candy store, he rifles through the shelves of our culture, mocking everything under the sun with his sharp satire: contemporary art, minority groups (sexual minorities included), corporate bigwigs, illegal immigrants, beloved kids' books, Vladimir Putin, tough guys turning to guerilla gardening, and more! Parodies, life lessons, fables and political satire....'Gasping for Sulfur' it's the start of a new wave for comedy comics!
