In 1970, teenagers Rudi and Sol gave up everything to sail around the world on a stolen yacht called "Mooi" (Dutch for "Beauty"). Now they have two children, Tao (14) and Ximi (8), who have grown up in a world of adventure, freedom, and self-reliance.

But this carefree, bohemian lifestyle conceals an oppressive past, which continually drives Rudi and Sol toward new horizons—to the profound despair of Ximi, who dreams of going to school. Yet how can they stop, when life on terra firma seems to harbor such insurmountable difficulties?

This is the first part a story based on Julie Ricossé's own experiences. Personal, poetic, and painted in bright colors, "A Life at Sea" makes the perfect bridge between childhood and adulthood.
