Tired of the ways of men, disgusted by his own past, Dario Ferrer chose exile in an African reserve. On the edge of the civilised world, he protects the animals from poachers with his home-made bullets, and lets the law of the jungle do the rest. But can the jungle protect him from the cunning ways of his own kind? With his death warrant signed and released by a corrupt government, the hunter will have to prove that there's nothing more dangerous than a wounded animal...

A story written, drawn and coloured entirely by Hermann, as per usual.
