Pierre Christin and Annie Goetzinger take us into a detective story trilogy. Paris, in the 50s, and Edith Hardy, the boss of a private detective agency, must solve the disappearance of a young scientist from a chemical plant. The investigation, which seems fairly standard at first, will lead the heroine from the Passage du Rendez-Vous in the 17th arrondissement to the heart of Soviet Moscow, stopping off at a manor house in Ardennes, the secret den of the Cominform agents, along the way. Pierre Christin and Annie Goetzinger bring together the best known sights of Paris with a clever depiction of the Cold War, industrial espionage and police investigation in this beautiful issue comprising the three first volumes of the series, as well as a new illustrated text with a little more information on our mysterious heroine.
