Amalia

By Picault

Amalia is on the verge of burnout. In her family, where she takes care of her daughter Lili, 4 years old, and puts up with her daughter-in-law Nora, 17 years old, there's nonstop shouting and slamming of doors. In the company where she is a Team Leader, they talk about nothing but profitability, and she loses the sense of what she is doing. In the surrounding countryside, she sees the earth being destroyed by pollution and on the radio, the world news is far from comforting. So Amalia gets tired and exhausted. She breaks down.
