Teresa absolutely adores her little sister Matilda and must help her escape from the castle where her own family tends to sacrifice her to the ancient god of the hunt. But when Matilda escapes in the middle of the night, she is tricked by a mysterious blue bird and drowns in a lake in the forest. The bird then inhabits Matilda's body so she must return to the castle to fulfill her destiny.

A tense story about female emancipation that denounces women's oppression, mixing horror and mystery with plenty of humor, and illuminated throughout by the careful artwork of Borja Gonzales.
