Veloce, an anxious and reckless young velociraptor, is on a quest to find answers to the mocking mammals' claims of the future extinction of his species. The small mammals mock Veloce and his fellow creatures, saying they are too big, too pathetic, too stupid to survive. For them, the dinosaurs are doomed to extinction, and all the better because they eat all the resources of the planet, destroy their habitats, and roam the earth aimlessly. Veloce tries to ignore it, but the predictions still worry him. His parents, too busy with other priorities, tell him that only the wise Troodon and the old Ankylosaurus have in the past already figured out the long journey our heroes will take.
