Fascinated by "The Jungle Book", Stephen Desberg has always wanted to understand why humanity has grown so fast. What if Mowgli knew the answer? Meanwhile, the little man has become a grandfather. Desberg bumped into him on a train station platform, bound for India, his head full of touching, mystical visions. Old Mowgli meditates about the forest of his childhood that he believed to be invincible, but that has since been destroyed by modernity. The Free People of Wolves have long since disappeared, but his spirit has not forgotten them.
