In 1943, the scientific-investigation division of the Third Reich ordered the assassination of one of its researchers. Then they concealed all traces of his work. Why?

Now, it is emerging that some witnesses to this disturbing affair have survived. A strange young woman has appeared to pay her respects at the murdered scientist's grave. And the scientist's discoveries haven't completely disappeared either...

In the course of his career, covering wars and criminal affairs around the world, reporter Sébastien Raives has come to believe that mankind is one of nature's mistakes. At the moment, this jaded investigative journalist is digging into the affairs of Waxon, a powerful multinational. Through its humanitarian third-world projects, Waxon presents itself as a model of ecological responsibility. But Sébastien is intrigued by the magnetic, mysterious India Allen, chief of security at Waxon, who seems to have a personal agenda that's strangely at odds with her position. Why did she ask an engineer to teach her how to blow up a chemical factory with maximal damage? What sadistic impulses allow her to rejoice at the deaths of thousands? And where does she get her infallible instinct for tracking down her prey?

A thriller in four volumes which combines current geopolitical reality with inexplicable supernatural events sprung from the horrors of the Second World War. From the writer of 'I.R.$' and the artist from the famous saga, 'Les Maîtres de l'Orge'.

Intégrale Rafales

J'ai vu plus qu'assez d'horreurs.
À se demander ce qui peut encore m'atteindre.

Mais je préfère nettement être celui qui vise !

CÔTE OUEST DES ÉTATS-UNIS.

JE PEUX VOUS OFFRIR UN
VERRE ?... SI JE PUIS ME
PERMETTRE... VOUS ÊTES
VRAIMENT TROP BELLE
POUR RESTER SEULE.

JE NE SAIS PAS
POURQUOI...

...MAIS LES HOMMES
ONT SOUVENT PEUR DES
FILLES... TROP BELLES.

PEUT-ÊTRE CRAIGNENT-ILS
DE NE PAS ÊTRE À LA HAUTEUR.
QU'EN PENSEZ-VOUS ?
