Friends and roommates Aline and Brigitte reach the store where they work only to find all their colleagues already there: Mrs. Ledoyen; Augustin the designer, who has a secret crush on Aline; Eve, the cantankerous cleaning lady; and, of course, the boss, Mr. Séraphin, with whom Aline is secretly in love. All the characters are present and accounted for; what better place to kick off the first scene than in the bathroom, where Aline accidentally walks in on the boss and finds out his secret: a micropenis! That night, she shares her discovery with her best friend, who can't resist the temptation to pass it on, in less than flattering terms, to her boyfriend... who also used to work at the store until Mr. Séraphin fire him. Now, he sees a perfect opportunity for revenge... Finding the storefront covered in explicit graffiti the next morning, Aline is eager to tell Mr. Séraphin that she doesn't care because she loves him. And, surely, the best way to convince him of that is to admit that Nature has also dealt her a less-than-ideal hand...
