Fito is a huge fan of video games, and he can't wait to try out the demo for New World Games that his friend Clara sent him. Within the first few seconds of gameplay he finds himself immersed in the fantasy world, and soon enough, a mysterious technology transports him inside the game... literally. What were previously virtual threats are now real ones. But if his game of strip poker left him feeling somewhat used, Clara was even worse off- she lost her game, and is currently in a coma. The only way to save her is to get back in the game and get to the next level! But does Fito have enough lives left to do it?
