Any Franco-Belgian comics fan will know of the legendary Tintin journal that has entertained generations of readers. Here, at long last, we bring you a 700-page album composed of the best, most unusual or most famous stories ever to have appeared in the journal, from some the greatest comics artists to grace this planet. An 80 page retrospective by Philippe Goddin explains the history of the journal, and of course, Hergé has the place of honor at the beginning of the album, with 70 pages describing his collaboration with the Tintin journal.
