Captain Sherman, the most eloquent and imaginative of pirates, knows how to motivate his troops when morale is low. And unfortunately, it usually is because the captain has a weakness: he rarely finds any treasures. However, he has been exploring a lead for some time now, one that quickly proves to be full of promise. One of his friends, an art dealer, has given him a rare text that will put him and his crew back on the right track. Pandora, a giant squid, is said to have swallowed a treasure carried by a Spanish ship from the New World. It's no surprise that the idea of such a treasure arouses a great amount of superstitious excitement and desire. Despite the crew's enthusiasm, many pitfalls await them in their search for riches. Sherman will also have to be wary of the underhanded trickery of an old rival: Rostand the Damned! This privateer, a former pirate, is in pursuit of Sherman's ship, the Urraca. Captain Sherman likes to make his men travel, and not only towards the horizon: he tells them a thousand tales of adventures and sumptuous landscapes. But what is this whimsical man hiding in his quarters among the hundreds of books that surround him?

CHANT MARIN TRADITIONNEL

CE N'ÉTAIT PAS UNE EXPRESSION : SON NOM LUI ALLAIT COMME UN GANT, SANS MAUVAIS JEU DE MOTS!

ON DISAIT DE SA MAIN PERDUE (DANS DES CIRCONSTANCES INCONNUES DE TOUS) QU'ELLE AVAIT ÉTÉ REMPLACÉE PAR UNE ENCLUME.

JE VOUS ASSURE QU'UNE ROUSTE PROVENANT D'UNE TELLE FOUTUE MAIN D'APPOINT N'ÉPARGNAIT PAS LA MOINDRE DENT!

AH ÇA C'EST SÛR : C'ÉTAIT UN EXCELLENT CHASSEUR DE TRÉSORS! ON NE PEUT PAS LUI ENLEVER ÇA!

IL AVAIT DU FLAIR, LE GRIGOU! QUAND ON TRAVERSAIT L'OcéAN, C'ÉTAIT POUR REVENIR PLEINS AUX AS!

MAIS TOUS CES TRÉSORS NE RÉALISAIENT PAS NOS RÊVES, CROYEZ-MOI! UN PIRATE N'A JAMAIS PEUR : MON ŒIL! ET LE VERT PLUTÔT QUE LE BLEU!

VIVRE AVEC UN COUTEAU SOUS LA GORGE, CE N'EST PAS COMME LE MAL DE MER : ON NE S'Y FAIT PAS!

LA PEUR AU VENTRE NE SE DISSIPÉ PAS À COUP DE PIERRES PRÉCIEUSES.
