Parents Emma and Malo don't know what to do about their son Sacha. He is 8 and, like most other kids of his age, is a manga fan, his favorite character being Mitsuo. But, when they watch him closely, they notice that Sacha is not like other kids at all. He is in a different world, his own world—or rather the world of Mitsuo. For Sacha, reality is what he reads, and he lives his life through his hero.

Communicating with Sacha becomes increasingly difficult, until finally his teachers inform Emma and Malo that he can no longer attend school because he requires more attention than they can give him.

Faced with this crisis, Emma and Malo have different ideas as to what to do. When they are unable to agree on a course of action, Emma decides to run away with her son... and, like him, to take refuge in the world of Mitsuo.
