Six people—three women and three men, from three different generations — each face a crucial challenge. The two retirees must assess what options they have left after the lives they have led. The younger woman must suffer the changes to her body caused by breast cancer, the man the consequences of his choice of career. And the teenagers confront the big questions all teenagers ask themselves. Young or old, they are all consumed by decisions that are typical of people everywhere. When chance brings them together they are all able to face the future with a smile.
