The gigantic army of the Ming emperor besieges the fortress of King Yang. The entire population of the kingdom has taken refuge behind the high walls of the city and the royal soldiers are ready to fight to the death to defend the city and its occupants. But courage is not always enough...

The adaptation of a fable on the war ordered by a Chinese province, written by Thierry Robin, an enthusiast of the Asian world and China for nearly 35 years! An appeal to humanism and pacifism, just like the convictions of the author.
