In 1968, in the pages of the weekly magazine 'Pilote', Marcel Gotlib launched the first 'Rubrique à Brac', which was a real revolution for the comedy comics... and the life of ladybugs. 40 years later, some of the most famous companions and protégés of this great master, from Binet to Larcenet and Ferri, from Boucq to Zep, through Antoine de Caunes, Guarnido, and even Edika, tried under Gotlib's supervision to talk in their own way with absolute seriousness about perfectly wacky subject. This is a new generation of 'Rubrique'; Gotlib is unique and inimitable, but this book is wonderfully hilarious and you will surely find just as much joy between its pages. Simply magical.
