In 1967, inside the pages of Pilote magazine, a strange aquatic creature with a moon face and a rose costume was born. The very essence of marvels and of adventure is crystallized with a weird and mocking humour in these five great stories. Thirty years later, Pierre Le Gal proposes a remake (across 5 volumes) of the original masterpiece of Lob and Pichard. The young will find in its pages, as in the past, great adventures and marvels. The older reader will add to it a delicious zest of nostalgia.
