Behind the mask of a vigilante there lies a... a real loser. Don Diego de la Vega, alias Zorro - it's a little like Clark Kent alias Superman: the best way to keep your heroic identity a secret is to behave unexceptionally in real life. Okay, but it's not always easy for Don Diego to maintain his secret - particularly when his father, Don Alejandro, tends to get drunk and shout at whoever will listen that his son is really the famous and respected hero Zorro!! And Don Diego himself is sorely tempted to reveal his secret, especially when he's trying to court the seductive Señorita Sexualidad. All the main characters of this legendary series put in an appearance, though they're not necessarily shown in their best light (!) Bernardo, Sergeant Garcia, Tornado, and the others, they all take their place in this parodic, utterly loopy version of Zorro. This album brings together a series of half-page gags, on the model of De Gaulle à la plage [de Gaulle on the Beach], with a completely off-the-wall sense of humor.
